MIRAGE OF L. A. SEWER FACILITIES DISPELLED BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT

Consulting Engineer Reports to Council Substantial Relief Cannot Be Offered Adequately by That City Under Any Plan Suggested

TWO DISPOSAL METHODS ARE GIVEN

Local Outfalls to Treatment Plants at Distance From Glendale Proposed in Each of His Suggestions

Los Angeles is utterly unable to keep any pledge for sewer facilities, it was declared by J. B. Lippincott, consulting engineer, last night.

Three possible solutions to Glendale's sewage problem were offered to the city council Wednesday night by Mr. Lippincott, who was employed to look over the sewage situation of Glendale and to suggest a way or ways by which the problems of this city along this line may be overcome. The idea that Los Angeles can offer adequate relief by connection is dispelled in the first conclusion of the survey.

In Mr. Lippincott's report the propositions are numbered, and each is distinct and separate from the others.

Number 1, connection with the Los Angeles sewer at the corner of Macy street and Mission road, would cost the city about $500,000, this amount doubtless to be increased in the event that Los Angeles would have to enlarge her mains at a later date in order to take care of Glendale's sewage, which procedure is exceedingly probable.

Number 2, would consist of running a line down San Fernando road, along the route of the Los Angeles river to a treating plant to be located beyond Glendale and east of the Los Angeles city limits. The estimated cost of this is $525,000. This method is looked upon with favor by Mr. Lippincott and his associates.

Number 3, would comprise the running of a line up into the San Fernando valley, many miles from Glendale, and the estimated cost of this is about $420,000.

The report in full will be found on page 9.

Those present at the meeting to hear the reading of the report by Engineer Lippincott were Mayor Robinson, Councilmen Kimlin, Stephenson, Davis and Lapham, City Attorney Shaw, City Manager Reeves, City Clerk Van Wie, City Engineer Dupuy, Jesse Smith, W. E. Hewitt, L. H. Wilson, Peter Ferry, all representing the Glendale Chamber of Commerce; Attorney McBryde, Attorney Eugene J. Wix, Dr. G. Kaemmerling, and E. A. Rowe and E. H. Clarkson, engineers, who accompanied Mr. Lippincott.

The conclusions and suggestions for a solution follow:

CONCLUSIONS:

From the studies that have been made by us to date, we are of the opinion:

First — That substantial relief can not be offered adequately by the city of Los Angeles to the city of Glendale in accordance with any plan that has been suggested to us as yet. At some future date when Los Angeles has built an adequate intercepting sewer, such connection may be entirely advisable.

Second—Apparently the most acceptable method of sewage disposal is by means of a gravity main line from Glendale to a point southeast of the city of Los Angeles, together with a sewage disposal plant in that neighborhood. It is quite possible that other rapidly growing communities in that general neighborhood, which are now without sewers, would join with Glendale in such a project.

From legal advice which we now have it appears that the feasibility of this project is dependent upon the granting of a permit by the city of Los Angeles to the city of Glendale to lay sewers on streets approximately along the easterly bank of the Los Angeles river. Negotiations for the securing of this permit should be promptly initiated.

Third—Assuming that the above mentioned permit can not be obtained from the city of Los Angeles, we are of the opinion that it is feasible to collect, pump and dispose of the sewage of Glendale northwest of the city of Glendale about seven to 10 miles from its business center, and there disposed of, within reasonable limits of expense, and the major portion of these works can be ultimately utilized for connecting up with the sewer system of the city of Los Angeles when it is adequately constructed. This would probably be when the proposed intercepting sewers are extended by the city of Los Angeles either into the San Fernando valley or in the river bottom areas south of Griffith park.

We intend to make an extended study immediately of various sewage disposal plants throughout the United States, giving special attention to pumping projects. This preliminary report will be followed by plans and estimates and a final report at some later date.

AUTO ACCIDENTS OF YESTERDAY

Several automobile accidents occurred in Glendale yesterday. Machines driven by Mrs. E. Enos of the Victor hotel, and Mrs. W. W. McCowan, 522 Acacia, collided at the corner of Colorado and Brand at 3 o'clock. Both cars were considerably damaged and two globes of the cluster street light, which one of the cars struck, were broken.

Harry E. McCartney, 316 Fairview, and R. Rikato, of Helendale, California, were driving machines that collided at the corner of Colorado and Central at 6:30 o'clock. Both cars were considerably damaged, and Henry Aleken, who was riding with Rikato, was cut by flying glass.

SANTA CLAUS IN KHAKI IS NEW IN GERMANY

COBLENZ, GERMANY, Dec. 21.—The poor German kiddies of Coblenz today were happy, because an American Santa Claus, with a khaki uniform beneath his red and white duds, helped to make Christmas something like it was before the war.

Christmas in Coblenz was turned into a real holiday and cheer was spread by the aid of the committee of the Rhineland Post No. 700, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The Christmas menu was drafted and included all the fixings, from "soup to nuts." At least 250 poor children of the Coblenz district were made to realize that Santa Claus—this year at least—is not a fable.

After the dinner Santa Claus appeared in person and distributed gifts to the needy ones. They consisted mostly of children's clothing, underwear and shoes donated by the American colony here. Following the appearance of St. Nick, the kiddie were entertained by a real vaudeville show given by the best German talent available.

COMMUNITY TREE FORCES ARE RALLIED

18 Organizations Have Signed Up to Part in Big Celebration

SACKING CANDY NOW

Col. Everington Calls on All Santa Clauses to Attend and Aid

A meeting of Harry Girard, stage manager for the Glendale Community Christmas celebration to be held at the high school grounds on Christmas night, the chairman of the program committee, and Alexander Stewart, Pacific coast music organizer for National Community Service, is being held at the chamber of commerce this afternoon for the purpose of completing final details for the big Christmas program. The program committee reports that there will be approximately eighteen groups from various church and organizations throughout the entire city who will take part in the music program and caroling, accompanied by the high school orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. Dora Gibson.

Decoration of the Community Christmas tree, which is in charge of L. W. Chobe, will begin Friday. City Manager Reeves has promised the assistance of the firemen with their ladders to reach the top parts of the tree.

Colonel James W. Everington, general chairman in charge of the Christmas celebration, extends an invitation to all of the Santa Clauses in Glendale to be present and help in the distribution of sacks of candy which will be given to the children. This section of the program is in charge of David Black, who has secured 700 pounds of candy. Representatives of various organizations are meeting at the high school this afternoon to "sack" the candy. They will be assisted by the Boy Scouts, who are also securing cartons to put the candy in.

BAND PROPOSED FOR EAGLE ROCK

Prof. Grohmann Discusses Subject at Woman's Club

What is to be known as the initial move toward securing a band for Eagle Rock came last night at the Women's club house, when Prof. W. H. Grohmann, recently of Lemmon, South Dakota, talked the matter over, with 15 prospective band members.

Prof. Grohmann has been the conductor of several very successful bands for boys and girls, of ages anywhere from 6 years up, and plans to organize a band that will do Eagle Rock credit. Another meeting will be held December 26, at 7 p. m., at the Women's club, when the final plans will be made, and the organization placed upon its feet.

Prof. Grohmann conducted a band of 48 members in Holstein, Wis., and of 50 members, in Kiel, Wisconsin. Members of this organization at Kiel won the prize at the boys' band tournament, when 16 bands competed. The professor says it is not necessary to know how to play an instrument, as he is ready to teach those desirous of learning, and promises that the experience of playing with a regular band will be invaluable to them.

Having had training in Vienna, Austria, and in this country, with Frederick N. Innes, who has conducted notable symphony orchestras, Prof. Grohmann is equipped to give the band members worthwhile training. He was in the 15th infantry of the United States, for six years, also, leading army bands during that time.

"I especially extend the invitation to the girls to join this band. In other words, the girls have done remarkably well, and I know they will experience a great deal of enjoyment from it," said the professor this morning. "I have spoken to a great number of people here before trying to organize this band, and with their assurance that it would meet with the favor of the people, I am going ahead with the organization."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of the Press: Will you allow sufficient space in your excellent paper to an individual taxpayer answering an affront offered by Councilman Davis to the general public, in his remarks during the love feast at the Chamber of Commerce.

Here is the quotation from the issue of your paper of December 20: "I think the chamber of commerce should uphold the Glendale city council when it does something that is for the best interests of the city," said Councilman Davis. "Especially when the action does not receive a favorable decision on the part of the general public. You should stand some of the blunt of criticism. The council should have the respect of the citizens of Glendale. Your organization has done a great deal of good and it will doubtless do a lot of good in the future. You are to be congratulated for the many things you have accomplished."

At the outset let me state my position. I am a taxpayer of Glendale, having been attracted to Glendale during my search for a home; having secured one now and being desirous of seeing the slogan "Glendale, a City Beautiful" realized, I naturally take an interest in civic affairs, and may I add that I am not a novice in that, as I have always been interested in and compared the handling of civic affairs in many cities during my former years of travel and studies. I have seen flagrant breaches of trust committed by city officials in a number of cases. I have seen criminal negligence displayed by elected officials and I have observed impudent disregard to sworn duties of office and I have seen the will of electorates and desires of taxpayers frustrated by unscrupulous officeholders, but I have never heard or read a more brazen statement of a city official than the one above quoted.

Ye gods and little fishes! Has it come to this, that we are back to the days of old Commodore Vanderbilt, who said when approached for an election campaign contribution, "No, it is cheaper to buy candidates than to elect them," and when he was reminded of the people's possible resentment, he answered, "The public be damned."

The peevish outcry of Councilman Davis and his preposterous plea that the chamber of commerce should protect the city council more from the criticism of their official actions by the entire general public's disapproval—that is so utterly ridiculous that it would need no comment, were it not for the fact that it indicates a dangerous tendency; that is, a defiant attitude of picked servants to their masters. We taxpayers electorate!

When we consider that through the principles of constitutional rights even the administration of the highest office in the country is open to criticism, as we can daily read and see it practiced in the Congressional Record—then, perish the thought. Don't criticise the little council of Glendale! Shades of Oliver Cromwell, do we see our council running for cover into the folds of the chamber of commerce just because a number of public-spirited citizens have dared to criticise some of the council's actions? Or must we infer that fear has moved into their little hearts that their job is in danger? From an outraged public.

In conclusion let me cite another famous statement: "The council should have the respect of the citizens of Glendale." So it should, provided it deserves it and the citizens of Glendale will not refuse respect when they see that their interests are delegated into safe hands.

There is another statement made by a councilman at that joyful banquet, namely, "If each will stay in its place there will be no friction. In the future each will confine itself to its own sphere of activities." Ahem! What a significant glimpse it affords behind the stage. The unsophisticated taxpayer scratches his head and mutters, "Did the chamber of commerce try to boss the council, or vice versa? Or did one body arrogate the powers and authorities of the other? Or both?" Truly, a fine mess! But don't criticise!

I think the chamber of commerce will think twice before it accepts the perplexing job of shielding the city council.

PRETTIEST GIRL STUNT HITS SEATTLE

Prettiest Prettys are Prinking and "Photoing" for Prizes

SEATTLE, Dec. 21.—The "Prettiest Girl" contest craze has hit Seattle hard. Seatle does not like to boast, but perhaps the large numbers of fair ones in all walks of life here are responsible.

For some time a Seattle newspaper has been corndUcting a "prettiest waitress" contest, the photographs of the "possibilities" being run daily. Before the contest ends the judges will have interviewed personally those candidates whose photographs they have decided are worthy of consideration for highest honors. After the interviews the winner will be picked.

Not desiring to be left out of the lime-light three "Penny-Arcade Girls" have asked that a contest be started for the "Prettiest Penny Arcadian." The contest is promised for the near future as soon as the waitresses can be served and tipped.

Other "prettiest" contests suggested are for telephone girls, manufacturing girls, stenographers, and elevator girls. In the case of the "hello girls" some difficulty may be encountered as it is contended that their voices, not their faces, are their fortunes.

BROADWAY SCHOOL LOOTED

The Broadway school was entered at about 7 o'clock Wednesday night. Residents of that section, noticing one of the windows open, turned in the alarm. Entrance was gained through a front window and exit was made out of a window in the rear of the building. H. L. West, custodian of the building, was notified.

SPEEDSTERS ARE CAPTURED ON BOULEVARDS

Good Christmas Money Goes to Waste in Court

The autoists who make a race track out of the boulevards through Eagle Rock, must pay, so rules the state motor vehicle act. There is a question whether or not a jail sentence will be meted out to David Title of 310½ North Fairmont, Los Angeles, at court next Saturday, for driving through Eagle Rock at 47 miles an hour yesterday afternoon.

Harry Williams arrested David Title, and placed a charge of reckless driving against him. Mr. Title, who affirmed that he was connected with the Platt Music company, of Los Angeles, deposited $50 bail, and is ordered to appear before Judge Cruzan Saturday.

Jane Lind, leading lady at the Raymond theatre, Pasadena, also received a ticket yesterday, when she was driving 31 miles an hour in the 15-mile limit. When Harry Williams stopped her, Jane Lind told him she was on her way to see her mother, who was ill, and that she was in a hurry, as rehearsal had kept her late. Harry Williams gave her a ticket, nevertheless, and the leading lady will enact her role as speedester next Saturday and tell her reasons to Judge Cruzan.

BURGLARS ATTACK THE HI STATION

Patrolman Abbott Finds Man Working on Gym Window

FLEES ON ALARM

Station Is Heavily Guarded Against Mail Theft

An attempt was made at 3 o'clock this morning to burglarize the temporary substation of the postoffice, located in the high school gymnasium. Officer Abbott, as he was making his rounds, noticed a man trying to pry the wire from one of the windows of the gym. Immediately he sent in the alarm and Officers Nunn, Baugh and Claxton hurried to the scene.

It is believed the would-be thief saw the officers coming, for as they approached he ran down the alley to Colorado street and east along that thoroughfare, disappearing in the darkness. Chief of Police Fraser has issued orders that a strict watch be placed on the substation until after Christmas.

POSTMASTER EXPECTS TO GET AIR MAIL

Believes Glendale Airport Will Be Used by Government

Postmaster Jackson is of the opinion that the establishment of an air port here would be likely to make Glendale an air mail terminal for the reason that it is close to Los Angeles and yet far enough away to escape the coast fogs.

In the expectation that it may become a vital part of the western postoffice system he has secured bulletins issued by the government in regard to airplane service.

BUILDING PERMITS LOOK UP AT THE SUNSHINE

Good Weather Brings Contractors to City Hall Early

EAGLE ROCK—

While building permits have been fewer, owing to the tremendous amount of building contracted for during November, there is no let up in the building industry to be seen at the present time.

Elgin L. Pierce of 141 Eddy avenue is among those to build, having adopted plans for a 6-room colonial bungalow which will be located at 848 East Stanley. J. E. O'Brien of 234 W. Mariposa is also building a colonial bungalow, at 210 W. Ridgeway, which will contain 5 rooms.

Eagle Rock Gardens have been the scene of considerable building in the last few months, the houses being for the most part, just temporary dwellings. R. H. Rogers of 5801 Meridian street, is the latest builder at Eagle Rock Gardens, and will locate on Aubrey street.

As had been predicted, building permits took on a more live aspect with the return of good weather.

P. L. Whitney of 128 N. Royal Drive is to build a house and garage at 160 N. Peyton, having let the contract to Slaght and McMackin, for a $3000 5-room house.

A. J. Braasch of 301 W. Hill avenue, is to make certain alterations and build a garage at the above address. J. T. Egasee is the architect, and Henry Nash, the builder. The alterations and garage will be done at a cost of $4000.

John R. Riley is to build a garage for P. F. Schumacher, at 835 E. Park avenue for $100. D. H. Farley will build a 4-room house for Florence Mason of 133 Fifield street, costing $3000.

Basil M. Fair and Laura A. Fair of 429 East Adams are having a studio built in the rear at a cost of $250.

FIRE EXTINGUISHED

Fire broke out at about 7 o'clock last night in the nurses' quarters of the Glendale Research hospital, 412 Piedmont Park. The Glendale fire department was called out and succeeded in extinguishing the flames before a great deal of damage was done.

CITY COUNCIL CONSIDERS J. B. LIPPINCOTT REPORT ON SEWER SITUATION

Instructs Engineer to Prepare Questionnaire to Verify in Los Angeles Conclusions as to Connection With That Municipality

TALK ABOUT TRUNK LINE PERMIT

No Resolutions, Motions or Other Action Taken or to Be Taken Until Replies Come From the Metropolis

Instructions to prepare a questionnaire to be answered by the Los Angeles city council was the one definite result last night at the meeting of the city council, before which the report of J. B. Lippincott was read on the sewer question.

Mr. Lippincott was asked to draw up the questionnaire to cover sewer relations with Los Angeles, for the verification of his report on the impossibility of securing relief there.

Following this, the councilmen discussed, but passed no resolution, made no motion took no action on the report or on the three conclusions arrived at and submitted by Mr. Lippincott.

In the discussion an idea developed in a tentative way, that if the answers from the Los Angeles city council conformed the findings of Mr. Lippincott, the city council then, should, might, could and would, ask Los Angeles for a permit to build a disposal trunk line through a Los Angeles city district for the purpose of possibly putting through the plans suggested by Mr. Lippincott in his report last night.

But beyond the instructions to Mr. Lippincott to draw up the questionnaire and its suggested presentation to for answers by the Los Angeles city council by Mayor Robinson, there was no action taken.

In the discussion Councilman Kimlin said:

"Would it not be well for us to go in a body to the city council and ask that body what assurance it can give us that Los Angeles will be able to take care of this city's sewage in the event a connection is made to the Los Angeles sewer?

"Then, in the event that the answers are not favorable to Los Angeles, would it not be our next move to apply for the permit to that body to run our proposed sewer main through Los Angeles to the proposed treating plant east of that city?"

All of the members of the council and Engineer Lippincott thought this would be the proper thing to do.

"Suppose," said Mayor Robinson, "we have Mr. Lippincott bring in a letter containing questions asking the Los Angeles council exactly the things we want to know. Then, suppose we, with this letter, and accompanied by Mr. Lippincott, go before the city council and put these questions to this body. Just as soon as I receive the letter containing these questions from Mr. Lippincott, I can make an appointment with the Los Angeles city council."

The members of the city council informally decided to follow these suggestions.

EXCHANGE CLUB AIDS FLOAT FUND

Appoints Committee to Construct Xmas Tree Platform at High

The Exchange club of Glendale held an interesting meeting Wednesday noon at the Broadway Inn, where Mr. Hersel, caterer, had a surprise luncheon ready for the members.

The matter of the Glendale float to be entered in the tournament of roses was considered and it was voted that the club give the float committee $25 to help defray the cost of building it.

There were several guests present, including Dr. C. F. Tuohy, George Hallett, whom Postmaster Jackson introduced as the brains of the postoffice, and C. L. Cyphers of the Harrower laboratory.

The Community Service requested that the Exchange club select from its membership several men to erect a platform in front of the Glendale high school on which the community service Christmas tree is to be installed. The men who are to handle this work are W. C. Waring, J. C. May, Bert L. Cline and A. B. Castile.

At the forthcoming meeting of the club, Dr. W. H. Appleton, a well-known local physician, has promised to give the members a very interesting talk.

Council Pays $250 Toward City Float

BERLIN FIRM IS OFFERING ANTI-VOLSTEAD STUFF

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—There are certain combinations of things in this universe, like ham and eggs for example, that are almost as inseparable as the Siamese Twins. But a new combination has been introduced into California in the way of advertising from a German company that is "hot after business."

"You can reproduce—" begins the circular from a firm doing business in Berlin, and then goes on to proclaim the merits of a wondrous elixir which, by a simple process, can be transformed into "real" wines and beers. It carries a "money-back" guarantee.

But the wily German, thinking that his circular may have fallen into the hands of a prohibitionist, has prepared to please everybody. Obeying the injunction to read the other side, the wearer of the white ribbon will be pleased to read about the marvelous electric flytrap.

"If you don't indulge, you certainly will be interested in killing flies."

At the 5 o'clock mass the singing will be by the children, under the direction of Miss Ada Gies, who is superintendent of the Sunday school. The mass at 10:30 o'clock will be a high mass, with the singing by the big choir. Edwin Albright formerly of St. Vincent's church in Los Angeles, is the director of the large choir. Mrs. Thomas Smith, graduate of the Conservatory of Music at Detroit, Michigan, will be in charge at the pipe organ.

Reverend Patrick Dunne, formerly of the Holy Cross church in Los Angeles, arrived in Glendale Wednesday to take up his duties as assistant to Reverend Father James S. O'Neill.

CHRISTMAS EVE

BY H. E. LOVELESS

A vision comes to me tonight,
As Christmas time draws near,
Two little stockings, thin and white,
And much the worse for wear,

Are hanging by the chimney flue—
In one is pinned a note—
A secret to Old Santa Claus—
And this is what she wrote:

"Of course I'd like a pretty doll,
As little girls all do,
And Brother, dear, would like a ball,
Or some nice toy or two.

"But don't send toys to me or Bob,
For Mamma's sick in bed,
And poor Papa has lost his job—
He can't buy meat and bread."

Two little forms at break of day
Came creeping down the stairs—
Their hopes and glad expectancy
Replaced by sighs and tears.

Instead of food or pretty toys
They find a dismal note
Of sympathy to girls and boys,
And this is what he wrote:

"Because of war, my pack was light,
I found it did not pay
To climb the snowy roofs all night—
So I threw the pack away.

"And then all kinds of food and meat
Were high and going higher,
I had to kill my deers to eat,
And broke up my sleigh for fire.

"The bells are all that's left to me—
I'll toll them far and near,
To let the children know there'll be
No Santa Claus this year."

A Daily Tour of Glendale Stores

S. J. MILLS IS MAKING FUR FLY

S. J. Mills, the furrier, at 133 South Brand, is one of the busy men these days. Besides enjoying a good run of regular business everybody, it seems, wants work done now.

Yesterday Mr. Mills received an order from a Los Angeles lady to make an Alaska Seal fur coat, and the price will be $600 when it is completed. Mr. Mills handles the genuine Alaska government goods and is enjoying a good business.

DIBBERN'S FINE DIAMONDS AND WATCHES

Flanked by tall, slender silver vases and candelebra, the latter filled with painted candles repeating the tints in the changeable silk curtain background, the windows in Dibbern's Jewelry store at 121 North Brand, make a pretty setting for a tempting array of pearl necklaces, brooches, rings and other personal adornments of beauty.

Mr. Dibbern says his main bid for attention is his stock of fine watches and diamonds. Of these last gems he has an assortment of a variety to fit every case, whether it be an engagement ring or the renewal of the pledge of fifty years of wedlock.

While he is glad to see the sun shining again he says the dark weather had little effect on his business last week. He is very much pleased with the patronage Glendale has given him since he started his attractive store.

Mr. Dibbern will add an optical department to his business after the first of the year. It will be in charge of Dr. Warren G. Newton, who is coming here from San Francisco and who is an eye-strain specialist.

Alterations in the store which will provide him with an examination room and work shop will begin December 29.

PERSONAL TOUCH WITH CONGRESS ESTABLISHED

Follows President Wilson in Visit to the Legislature

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—President Harding has firmly established the precedent of the chief executive appearing personally before Congress for the delivery of messages outlining the plans and policies of the administration.

By constant adherence during his term to the custom revived by President Wilson, the president is now considered as having permanently fixed the face-to-face contact with Congress.

There was a fleeting outcry among the tradition-bound veterans of Congress when President Wilson broke the precedent set in the first administration of the government. However, the opposition soon died away as the country was seen to approve his action. President Harding favored the change and it is said by those close to him that he hopes the precedent is now well established.

In this connection the present chief executive has himself set a preedent which will possibly be carried along by his successors in office. By delaying his personal appearance before Congress recently until several days after the regular session had convened, he broke all custom. Every other president had regularly addressed his annual message to the opening of Congress on the day after Congress had assembled.

This marked deviation during the last two administrations has caused those here who watch the shifting of political currents to predict that an era of change has begun which will result in other pronounced alterations in government procedure. One reform, widely advocated and supported by President Harding, the privilege of cabinet members appearing on the floor of Congress to defend or urge courses of policy, may, follow.

Engineer for 45 Years, Has Never Had Accident

From his photograph Billie Naismith looks too young to have such a record. But he has been with the Union Pacific system for fifty-three years, and for all except eight years of that time has been a locomotive driver. Naismith now pilots the Los Angeles Limited over the mountains from Cheyenne. In all his years of service Billie has never been "called on the carpet."

Little Robert while out walking with his nurse saw a blacksmith shoeing a horse and upon returning home said, "Mamma, I saw the man who makes horses today."

"Are you sure you did?" asked the mamma.

"Of course I am," replied Robert. "He had one nearly finished when I saw him. He was just nailing on its behind feet."

"Mamma," queried small Lela, who was looking at the picture of an angel, "how do the angels get their gowns on over their wings?"

SEE WHAT THE GOAT GLANDS DID!

John Ross, aged 73, won a 50-yard race among the convicts of the San Quentin prison in seven seconds flat. He had a goat gland operation performed a few months ago and was so full of "pep" that shortly after he ran away from the field in the athletic meet he ran away from the prison guards while working on a road gang. Motorcycles were necessary to catch him.

The provision dealer was astonished. He gazed at the newly married young woman as if he thought she were a victim of temporary insanity. "Did you say you wanted a—a lean chicken, ma'am?" he inquired. "Certainly, I did," and the young woman's expression took on an added dignity. "Neither Mr. Torker nor I ever ate chicken fat. It is extremely distasteful to both of us, and I see no occasion for paying for what we do not like."

A Frenchwoman with a rather limited knowledge of the English language entered a chemist's shop in London and asked for some face powder. "Will you have it scented?" inquired the assistant. "No," was the reply. "I will take it via me."

Mrs. Brown was pleased. Her eyes sparkled as she looked down at her hand.

"How extravagant of you, dear," she said, "to pay £50 for this ring!"

Her husband smiled quietly.

"Not at all darling," he replied. "Just think what I shall save on your glove bills."

THEOBALD - FORD NUPTIALS ARE HELD IN L. A.

Surprise Conclusion of Shopping Visit to Los Angeles

The many friends of Miss Muriel Theobald and Henry Ford will be surprised to learn of their marriage Tuesday afternoon in Los Angeles. The announcement of their wedding came as a complete surprise to both of their families. It seems that the young couple had gone Christmas shopping to Los Angeles and shopped up around "Cupid Spark's" office for when they returned to Glendale that evening they announced that they had been married.

They left that night for a wedding trip to parts unknown and the date of their return is also a secret.

Mrs. Ford is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Theobald of 138 South Pacific avenue. She graduated in the midwinter class of 1921 at Glendale high school and has a host of friends here.

Mr. Ford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Ford, 673 West Broadway. Mr. and Mrs. Ford will make their home in Glendale upon their return here.

STOVERS HAVE SAD CHRISTMAS TIDE

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Stover, 1120 East Wilson avenue, passed away at a local hospital, December 20. Interment at Grand View Memorial Park this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Kiefer & Eyerick in charge.

Praise is due the man who makes good when conditions are bad.

GLENDALE ACTORS GIVE "SOCIETY NOTES"

Over forty friends and members of the Glendale Community Service Players met Tuesday night at the home of the director, Nanno Woods, 122 West Milford street, to enjoy the first dramatic production of this recently organized and very active group of players. The one-act playlet, entitled "Society Notes" by Duffy West, held the attention of the audience from first to last. Miss Dorothy Morton was charming as the ingenue; Mrs. L. Bradley gave a fine impression of a matronly society climber; Mr. L. Bradley, as the unsuitable suitor, was excellent; Dr. J. Tuneson proved a convincing lover; Miss Dorothy Patterson took the part of a gushing society reporter who found everything "ravishing;" Hubert Woods did a fine piece of character work as the irascible, rheumatic father. The cast was directed by Mr. Bernard Tweedale, second vice-president of the Community Players. Lighting effects were improvised by Hubert Woods.

After the play Mr. Bernard Tweedale vastly entertained the audience by portraying the manner in which different kinds of persons recited "The Charge of the Light Brigade" by Tennyson—the Frenchman, the man with a wooden arm, the man who stuttered, and others. Mrs. Eileen Whelon contributed a delightful vocal solo, "At Dawning" by Cadman. Mr. Nathan Dial gave a Bert Williams song, and Mrs. Nanno Woods read two of her own original poems, "When You Get Home Tonight," and "Smile When Your Husband Comes In." Informal dancing followed, and a right good time was enjoyed by all.

It is hoped that many other groups of players will spring up throughout Glendale, for there is undoubtedly a wealth of dramatic talent which could be developed and encouraged to the benefit of the actors themselves and to the community at large. Who will take the initiative and become the leader of another group of players?

DR. STUART TELLS OF VISIT FROM INSPECTOR

Dr. Stuart of the Glendale Pharmacy says he was misunderstood at the meeting of the Glendale Advancement Association in connection with the proposed contract postoffice station on the east side of Glendale. What he intended to convey was, that the quarters he offered to provide for such a station were visited by an inspector who presented written authority to make the inspection, and he has heard nothing since; that he understood the report was adverse, meaning that the report of the inspector was adverse. He did not intend to be understood as saying that Postmaster Jackson's report was adverse. He says he is not very anxious for the office which will entail a good deal of petty work but he would do it if desired, for the accommodation of his business neighbors.

Lack of storage room is one of the reasons which causes Mr. Gregg to make the remarkable reductions.

TO GLAZE PASTRY

To glaze pastry, break an egg, separate the yolk from the white and beat the former for a short time. Then when the pastry is nearly baked turn it out of the oven, brush it over with the beaten yolk of egg, and put back in the oven to set the glaze. When making pies tuck the upper crust under the lower crust and then press down with a fork. You will never have any trouble with juice running out, and in this way pies slip off the plate without any trouble.

SCOTCH SHORT BREAD

One cup butter, two cups flour, one-half cup powdered sugar. Cream the butter, add the flour and sugar, knead all together thoroughly with the hands, roll out about one inch in thickness and cut in oblong cakes. Bake about half an hour, laying the bread on brown paper in an unbuttered pan.

HONEY CAKES

One cup honey and one cup sugar dissolved over fire. Five eggs, five tablespoons chocolate, one cup citron, one cup nuts chopped, two and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon each of cinnamon, cloves, allspice, ginger and baking powder. Bake in a sheet and cut in squares while warm.

FIGHT BETWEEN LANDIS AND BAN J.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Not so long ago when Judge Landis was named commissioner and put in charge of organized baseball, the major league club owners thumped him verbally on the back and shouted—"Long live the commissioner!"

Several old-timers within hearing distance remarked that they were all strong then for Landis, but they cautioned:

"Wait till baseball gets back on its feet. They'll be after him as strong and as heavy as they are for him now. He's bound to step on someone's toes."

The record of Landis on the bench and in public life was held up, however, as indicating that he liked to fight and if the magnates chose to battle him that he would fight.

It didn't take so long for the prophecy of the skeptics to be fulfilled. Ban Johnson, president of the league, was the first to pick up arms against the commissioner and he lost.

Who loses next will be interesting to watch. It's a cinch Landis won't, because he's too much of a fighter to quit and he's too big and capable for anyone living off baseball to make quit.

Johnson went about his campaign against the commissioner in a petty little attempt at annoyance.

He wanted to make the commissioner look cheap and Landis made him look cheaper by completely ignoring him, even to the point of refusing to mention his name.

* * * * * * *

Johnson has been a fighter in baseball for a good many years and he was the czar until Harry Frazee came into possession of the Boston Red Sox. Johnson then lost the friendship of the man who made him in baseball, Charles Comisky, and finally he incurred the hostility of two of the biggest men in baseball—Colonels Ruppert and Huston, the owners of the New York Giants.

The American League was then divided into two factions, with Detroit, Washington, Philadelphia, Cleveland and St. Louis against Boston, Chicago and New York.

This five to three split pulled Johnson through the crisis he faced in the Mays case, but it weakened his prestige, so that his five faithful clubs were unable to present enough opposition to forestall the movement started and pushed by the National League to secure Judge Landis as the commissioner of baseball.

Cartoonist, Writer and Advertising Expert to Address Realty Men

The citizens of Glendale are promised a treat next Friday evening when Will E. Chapin, the widely known cartoonist, artist, writer and advertising expert will deliver a talk on advertising from an artistic standpoint before the Realty board of Glendale in the chamber of commerce auditorium at 8 o'clock p. m., to which the public is invited, without charge.

Mr. Chapin is one of the most widely known all around newspaper men in the United States, having achieved a national reputation in nearly every field to which he has devoted his facile pen or pencil.

As war correspondent and special for Leslie's Illustrated paper for seventeen years he traveled the length and breadth of the United States and Canada and over many portions of Mexico, writing up and illustrating strikes, riots, cyclones, floods and similar disturbances. He won special distinction during the anarchist troubles in Chicago, at the Johnstown flood and at the Chicago stock yards and the Homestead riots.

He is widely known in California as the cartoonist of the Los Angeles Times, and while acting in that capacity was personally congratulated by President McKinley as being one of the main factors in saving California for the Republican party during the two free silver campaigns.

During the last ten years he has devoted his diversified talent to the exploitation of high-class subdivision property, having successfully "put over" such tracts as New Windsor Square and Beverly Hills.

He is now the advertising manager for Sparr Heights and the phenomenal success of that tract is largely due to his intelligent handling of its publicity.

Mr. Chapin's long experience in handling large advertising contracts makes what he has to say carry great weight and will be very instructive to our realtors and merchants who are desirous of becoming acquainted with the fundamental principles that underlie good advertising.

He is a trained speaker, having been on the Pond circuit for two years and as he has promised to make some charcoal character sketches, it will prove a very enjoyable evening.

Go and take your wives and sweethearts.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

SAFETY FIRST

It was the old, old story of the gun not being loaded. Only in this case it was not a gun, but a bottle of liniment that caused the trouble.

Mandy, Mrs. Greene's colored maid, awoke in the night suffering from acute indigestion. Mandy had a way of eating, not wisely, but too well.

Mrs. Greene, rushing to the medicine cupboard for a bottle which contained peppermint water, a useful remedy in cases of indigestion, fumbled on the wrong shelf, got the wrong bottle and splashed some into a spoon, which she held to Mandy's lips.

Sputtering, bewildered, Mandy choked and gasped:

"Its different, Mis' Anna! It doesn't taste like the medicine you always gives me. It's so powerful strong."

Mrs. Greene also gasped as she realized that Mandy had swallowed the wrong medicine. The bottle she held contained liniment—a liniment which she decided, sniffing hastily, contained belladonna.

White to the lips, Mrs. Greene roused her daughter, and told her of the mistake as she ran to the telephone.

The daughter, who had presence of mind at all times, insisted that Mandy drink quantities of lukewarm water as an emetic. Mandy, hysterical, declared that she could feel the waters of Jordan—her feet were in the river—but Tom, the son of the house, appearing in bathrobe and slippers, declared unfeelingly that it was not the waters of Jordan at all but the water that Mary, with shaking hands, was spilling on the floor as she filled glass after glass and urged it upon Mandy.

The doctor, roused from sleep, told Mrs. Greene comfortingly over the telephone that fortunately the liniment contained so little belladonna that Mandy's life was not in danger unless she died of fright. There was a soap basis in the liniment, he said, which would probably sicken her, and he would be right over with a stomach pump. In the meantime any emetic would do. The thing was to empty Mandy's stomach.

Mandy meantime vigorously and satisfactorily reacted to the emetic.

The doctor arrived, to find a thoroughly frightened, shaken Manday, and a family that stood around shivering, in deshabille, and said, "How on earth did you get the wrong bottle, mother. The peppermint water was in a small bottle."

"I thought I had the right bottle. And I expect I was not quite awake," admitted Mrs. Greene.

"Well, well, fortnately there is little damage done," said the doctor. "And Mandy's stomach will soon forget the insult. But if you take my advice—and some people do—you will always keep liniments and poisons in containers that differ from those in which you keep internal remedies.

"Most drug stores put poisons up in pebbled glass bottles, rough on the outside, so that when you touch 'em, even in the dark, you know that the bottle contains poison. There are three-cornered bottles, too. But one may wrap a sand paper label about a bottle containing poison. That, simple as it is, will serve the same purpose. One should never pour a dose of medicine without examining the bottle carefully. And all poisons and external applications should be kept on a special shelf—by themselves."

CHAMPION TILDEN TO LEARN NEW STROKE

Lost Finger Compels the World's Champion Tennis Player to Expedient

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Dec. 21.—William T. "Big Bill" Tilden, 2nd, world's tennis champion, expects to start practicing on indoor courts early in January to offset the handicap caused by the amputation of the upper portion of the middle finger of his right hand.

Undaunted by the fact that his finger has become very stiff, Bill has decided to build up an entirely new grip to conform with the limitations of his maimed hand.

"I am now certain that what is left of my middle right finger will be so stiff it will be virtually useless in gripping the racquet," Tilden said.

"This means I will have to remodel my game on orthodox lines and the trick shots that have meant much to my game will be a total loss. My backhand drive and by forehand drives probably will be the only strokes that will not be affected by my injury."

Tilden's finger was injured in a tennis match early in the autumn when he ran into a wire netting. The finger was slightly scratched and infection spread so that he lost the finger from the distal joint.

In diagnosing his own game Tilden claims he will retain the two great offensive strokes that carried him through matches to the championship.

"While retaining these two shots, absolutely all my other strokes with the possible exception of my service, will have to be changed. And, with regard to the service, I can't see how the finger is going to affect my high bounding delivery on which I depend principally in match play," the champion continued.

"I know that the volley shots and the delicate little cut shots that I have depended on so much are lost to me, for I make all those plays with my fingers.

"What I have to regain now is confidence in my play. In the last five years I have really never lost confidence in my ability to return a ball that I could reach. In the future I know this is going to be reversed, but I may be able to overcome this in time. Just now this is bothering me more than the mere matter of stroking.

"As to my game next summer I have said and will repeat it, that I will be lucky to get into the first ten for 1923, and I mean it.

"However, I am of the opinion that each succeeding champion has the right to the crown by winning in a match and if I am playing tennis of a calibre that warrants competition, I will be more than willing to defend the championship."

Meanwhile "Big Bill" is working out his game on paper. He is studying just what plays he will make when he starts playing again.

There is still a chance the champion may have to undergo another operation on his injured finger. His physicians, however, are trying to avoid this.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK—

By E. R. WAITE.
Secretary Shawnee, Oklahoma, Board of Commerce

THAT many business men should have a wider vision of modern business. A vision which will lead the way for increased opportunity and increased business.

THAT if you have good business, advertise—and keep it!

THAT if you want greater business, advertise — and get it!

THAT you can make quicker profits by quick turnover of stock.

THAT if you don't have a quick turnover, your stock will depreciate in value.

THAT you can't "play dead" and get anywhere.

THAT the man who hesitates too much is lost.

THAT hit-and-miss methods in business don't pay.

THAT the public wants good seasonable merchandise at reasonable prices.

THAT if you have the right kind of goods, service and prices, let the people know. Advertise!

THAT advertising and service sell goods.

THAT advertising brings business.

THAT poor goods and service lose business.

THAT every customer who leaves a store without the goods he came to buy, shows something is wrong with either the goods, price or service.

THAT if this happens often in a store, something is wrong with the business.

THAT somebody had better get busy and do something—and do it now!

THAT somebody has no vision of modern business methods.

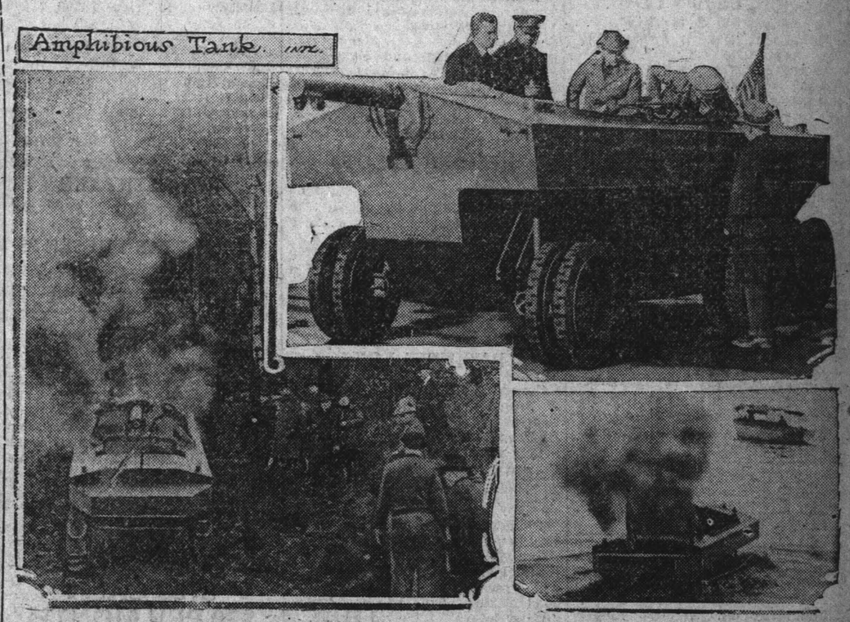
U. S. ARMY HAS SWIMMING TANK



High army officials witnessed the trial of the government-owned swimming tank invented by Walter Christie, famous old-time auto racer. The tank, which carries a six-pounder and three machine guns, climbs hills at an angle of 45 degrees, and when it comes to a stream it plunges in and goes across like a boat. It crossed the Hudson river near New York at 20 miles an hour and climbed hills at 30 miles an hour. On paved roads it runs on wheels; on hills it uses caterpillar tractors; in the water it is moved by propellers.

EX-SERVICE MAN'S FAMILY OF ELEVEN TO DODGE H. C. OF L. ABROAD

Charles K. Carrington of Philadelphia talked matters over with his wife. They have a brood of nine healthy, ever-hungry children and have found that a household budget system doesn't work out very well unless it is fed with plenty of funds. Friends in England advised them to give that country a trial and the eleven Carringtons sailed recently from New York. The children range in age from 14 years to 9 months.

DETAILED SEWER REPORT BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT AS MADE TO CITY COUNCIL

Survey of the Entire Situa tion Upon Which Conclusions Are Based for Need of Plant

The detailed report of J. B. Lippincott, consulting engineer, whose conclusions are given on the first page of the Glendale Daily Press, follows, as reported to the city council last night:

December 20, 1922.
Honorable Council of the City of Glendale, Calif.

Gentlemen: In compliance with your resolution employing us to make a study of the sewer problems in the city of Glendale, we desire to file a preliminary progress report as follows (these preliminary statements are subject to modification and revision as the result of further investigations on our part):

It is accepted as axiomatic that the rapidly growing residential city of Glendale must have modern, sanitary sewers. At the present time we have made preliminary investigations of three possible disposal propositions:

ONE: Cooperation with the city of Los Angeles in the building of a main or trunk line from the southerly end of the city of Glendale to a connection with the existing central Los Angeles intercepting sewer near the corner of Macy and Mission road, and the use of the present and future outfall sewer of the city of Los Angeles to the sea.

TWO: The building of a main sewer from the southern limits of the city of Glendale approximately down the San Fernando road following the easterly bank of the Los Angeles river to a point southeast of the city of Los Angeles, where a treatment plant would be constructed.

THREE: The collection of the sewage of Glendale in an intercepting sewer and its delivery to a pumping station to be erected to discharge the sewage to a point in the San Fernando valley. At this point the city of Glendale to erect a suitable sewage disposal plant and discharge the purified effluent onto the porous lands of the San Fernando valley.

Taking these three propositions up seriatim:

FIRST

We have made investigations of the size, grades, capacities and present discharge through the so-called central intercepting sewer of the city of Los Angeles from the point where it has been suggested we could make delivery to the city of Los Angeles, through to its connection with the present outfall sewer. This so-called interceptor was constructed in the early 90's and is designed to accommodate the congested business districts of the city of Los Angeles, Boyle Heights section and the easterly residential portions of Los Angeles as far south as the corner of Main and Jefferson streets. We have consulted the records of the city of Los Angeles and have made numerous measurements and observations of the present flow passing through this interceptor at various points along its line, and we find that it is now loaded up to 70 per cent of its full capacity. From reports of the Los Angeles city engineer we find that during the season 1919-20 this interceptor was 45 per cent full; in 1920-21, 50 per cent full, and we now estimate that it is 70 per cent full. Projecting this rate of increase of delivery to this interceptor, it will be completely filled by the year 1925, exclusive of any deliveries that may be made to it from the Glendale section. If connections were made at the present time for 20,000 people in Glendale with this interceptor, it would be at the present time within 6 per cent of full at the point suggested. It is our opinion that before it will be possible for the city of Glendale to vote the bonds and construct the main from Glendale to this connection near the corner of Macy and Mission road, at that time it would be impossible for this interceptor to afford relief to the 20,000 people suggested. In reaching these conclusions we have considered the time which will be consumed in the passage of the peak flow from the city of Glendale to the corner of Macy and Mission road, together with the periods of peak flow of the interceptor itself.

The $12,000,000 that has been voted during the present year by the city of Los Angeles for a new outfall to the sea does not provide for the construction of any interceptors or main laterals, which might be utilized for a connection by the city of Glendale. The new outfall to the sea from the city of Los Angeles will begin near the corner of Western and Slauson avenues. We have been informed by certain Los Angeles city officials that it is proposed that they will submit a new bond issue for approximately five million dollars to build such interceptors about the year 1925. The question as to whether the city council of Los Angeles that may be in office at that time would submit such proposal to the voters, or whether the voters would approve it if submitted, is, of course, problematical. If these bonds were voted, there would remain an additional period of financing and construction, which probably would consume from one to two years more.

Unless some more feasible plan with which we are not now familiar can be advanced by the city of Los Angeles for a connection with its sewer system, we are of the opinion that this does not offer any means of substantial relief to the city of Glendale.

SECOND

From estimates that we have made at the present time, the most economical as well as the most reliable method of disposal of sewage of Glendale would be the construction of a main from the southerly portion of the city down the San Fernando road and along the easterly bank of the Los Angeles river to a point southeast of the city of Los Angeles. This project would involve the building of the sewer through the streets of the city of Los Angeles for a distance of approximately eight miles.

The question as to your legal rights in so proceeding is one which should be referred to your city attorney. We would suggest that if one municipality does not possess the right of laying conduits for public necessities through the streets of adjacent municipalities when absolutely necessary, that it would be a very proper procedure for your representatives through the state legislature this winter to endeavor to secure the passage of a law giving municipalities such rights.

It is to be presumed that the city council of Los Angeles would desire to assist a neighboring municipality in the solving of its sanitary problems in some such manner, especially as Los Angeles from necessity must frequently require similar consideration.

We recommend that the city council of Glendale communicate with the city council of Los Angeles with a view to determining whether the council of Los Angeles would grant a permit to the city of Glendale to lay a sewer through the streets of Los Angeles. This should be done promptly, before much time is spent in the further design of this system.

THIRD

The Glendale sewage might be pumped to the north of the city of Glendale, about seven to 10 miles from its business center, and there disposed of.

In comparison with the other methods of disposal the first cost involved in this method is the lowest, but the annual cost of pumping would make its ultimate cost the most expensive. If these works were constructed to provide immediate relief, they could be designed so that if within a period of five to 10 years the city of Los Angeles constructed an interceptor sewer from the end of the outfall sewer up to the San Fernando valley, as has been proposed, the major portion of the constructed line could be utilized in a connection thereto, if it were deemed desirable at that time.

In designing the necessary works required for the disposal at the sewer farm, we have consulted with the officials of the State Board of Health and feel assured that their approval will be secured.

AT THE THEATRES

'YOUNG RAJAH' OPENS TONIGHT T. D. & L.

One of the strongest stellar vehicles for Rodolph Valentino, yet selected, is the enthusiastic opinion of the producers regarding "The Young Rajah," a new Paramount picture in which that popular star will be seen at the T., D. & L. Theatre opening tonight.

Three other notable features make this picture one of the strongest in which Mr. Valentino has yet appeared, under Paramount auspices. The story is the famous novel, "Amos Judd," by J. A. Mitchell, which proved one of the most successful American works of fiction. It was adapted to the screen by June Mathis, the adaptor of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "Blood and Sand," and other Valentino pictures. The cast is unusually large and includes many prominent and popular players, such as Wanda Hawley, Bertram Grassby, Charles Ogle, Pat Moore, George Periolat, Fanny Midgely, George Field, Edwin Stevens, Robert Ober, Jack Gidding, J. Farrell MacDonald and several others.

'RIGHT THAT FAILED' CLOSES TONIGHT AT GLENDALE

A joyous leap away from the conventional run of motion pictures is found in "The Right That Failed," the new Metro picture, starring Bert Lytell which opened last night at the Glendale Theater. It closes tonight. The author, J. P. Marquand, whose story first appared in the Saturday Evening Post, has got away from the stereotyped plot and developed a set of characters new to the screen with a humorous and fresh observation that holds the audience in its grip. It is good, clean, wholesome fun, with plenty of action and breathless suspense.

The story was transferred to the screen by Lenore Coffee, who deserves credit for the sparkling continuity. Bayard Veiller, author of "Within the Law," and "The Thirteenth Chair," who has turned to producing pictures for Metro, has done the best work of his career in making the story live as a merry slice of life, true to every detail.

Truths in Epigram

Refinement is superior to beauty. — Lascaris.

Minds of moderate calibre ordinarily condemn everything that is beyond their range.—La Rochefoucauld.

The scholar without good breeding is a pedant, the philosopher a cynic, the soldier a brute, and every man disagreeable.—Chesterfield.

MEXICO NOT NEIGHBORLY

An assassin fled from California into Mexico, and there fell into the hands of the authorities for a minor crime committed across the line. His prospects were not bright until there had been disclosure of his identity. Upon finding that he was a red-handed murderer, his victim a policeman, his status in jail changed from that of prisoner to guest. The populace gave every indication of desire to make a pet of him. Overtures of American officers to obtain him were flouted. Apparently he is safe, locked up only for the purpose of keeping him out of the reach of justice.

For a long time Mexico has sought recognition. It asserts itself to be worthy of a place among nations. The objections that have prevented recognition have rested on other than moral considerations. They have a commercial basis, and are in part technical. But the moral side is worth considering. Protection so freely extended one known to have been guilty of the cowardly killing of a useful citizen, may be a small episode in the relationship of peoples, but it is not fairly to be ignored. It has deep significance.

Mexico is close geographically, ethically remote. It is a neighboring organization, but it is not neighborly. The gap is not likely to be lessened by recent indications of its real feelings towards the United States.

THE FORCED CONFESSION

A man accused of crime by the Chicago police is said to have confessed as the result of a grilling lasting forty hours.

If the man did confess under these circumstances, the confession, extorted by torture, should not have standing at court. It could have no value, and in the interests of justice, would have to be rejected, and the record of it expunged, unless needed as evidence against the police.

There are ordeals under which a man must break, there being a limit to human endurance. Subject a prisoner, for forty consecutive hours, to what is known as the "third degree," and he would be at the status of mental and moral irresponsibility.

This paper has on many occasions pleaded for enforcement of the law. It has viewed with regret or disgust the recent miscarriages of justice that have marked court procedure. By the tricks of counsel, the stupidity of jurors, or corruption on the part of some intermediary, persons known to be guilty have openly defied justice to reach them, and have triumphed. But an accused person has rights, that are not to be withheld without violation of the written statutes and the unwritten ethics of decency. The police have no more justification in wresting confession from a prisoner they have had on the mental rack for forty hours, than they would have for using the ancient method of the hot pincher.

BANDED DESPERADOES

Of the intricate workings of the underworld, the outsider is permitted only occasional glimpses. These are frequent enough to reveal the fact that the denizens of that lower realm are organized, able, well-financed, and in a certain sense, governed by a code of honor as among themselves.

Hundreds of automobiles have been stolen on this coast. It is believed that many of them were stolen for the purpose of transporting illicit liquor out of Canada and into this country. Thus the bootleggers are in partnership with thieves, or they are thieves. This takes from the illegal trade all the glamor that thoughtless persons had ascribed to it. They regarded the defying of the prohibition law as a mere adventure, with a sporting side to it. The facts that larceny and murder are frequent incidents in the conduct of the traffic; that much of the liquor carried is deadly, so that to sell it has all the color of attempted murder, are beginning to get into the public mind.

The bootlegger is as unlovely a type of criminal as there is. He is without a single redeeming trait. There is nothing in the way of theft or violence that he is not ready to undertake, and for his profits he depends upon dupes whom he is willing to kill, knowing that there will be more dupes available. He has become a power in the underworld, and has stimulated its malign activities in countless directions.

CONCERNING TITLES

Dispatches state that an Austrian princess is to relinquish her title in order to marry a school teacher. The implication is that this is a sort of sacrifice on her part, the fact being that any young woman having so empty a title is in good luck to be able to swap it for relationship to a pedagogic salary. Not that this salary is much, but it is something, while the title is nothing.

There were Polish princes made by royal favor when Poland was independent. Naturally the title would have perished with the individual, had it not been nullified and effaced by the crushing of Poland. Nevertheless descendants of these one-time princes continue to go through the form of holding the titles. The re-establishment of Poland, this time as a republic, does nothing to restore the extinguished honors.

Held within the confines of Doorn, Hohenzollern regards himself still as the kaiser, and bestows sounding titles upon his bride. Altogether a very silly performance. It suggests a travesty as broad as made when Cervantes sought, in the antics of the quaint Don Quixote, to make a show of the follies of knighthood. The difference is that Cervantes was a conscious humorist, while Hohenzollern is in serious and rather pitiful earnest.

The world is growing away from the habit of respecting titles, or at least, of doing them reverence. Some of them are meaningless, some are bogus, and even the more dignified have lost much of their power to awe the humble citizen.

FINDING A REMBRANDT

Announcements of the finding of a Rembrandt picture are comparatively frequent. The finding of one of the treasures is so rare that it would be unique. The announcements are born of hope, or of the desire to befool a collector who has money in plenty, but is short on discretion. Were a genuine Rembrandt to come to light, the discovery would be regarded as a miracle, and the canvas be priceless. There were other great painters who may have left some work yet to be dug out of the rubbish of obscure garrets. There are from time to time, accidental finds of pictures of rare merit and value.

Rembrandt was perhaps the only artist who was famous from the inception of his career. He did not go through preliminary years of struggle, seeking the mastery of his art, for he was master of it from the beginning. Every picture he made was in demand as soon as off the easel. The entire record of his professional life is known, and every piece of work produced by him is accounted for, and its whereabouts established. The total number is not large. The only sure method of obtaining a Rembrandt would be to purchase it from the owner. Some of the canvases are in museums, and are beyond the reach of any price that might be named. The private owner of a Rembrandt has devoted a fortune to its purchase.

Nevertheless, the reported experiences of coming upon a Rembrandt in some musty shop are likely to continue.

WHAT IS GOODNESS?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Goodness is wisdom. Goodness is vision. Goodness is the peculiar power of seeing anything that may come up as it will appear in a month or a year from now.

Dr. Frank Crane

The one subject upon which the whole human race is constantly occupied is the matter of what is right and what is wrong. Every human being, from the bishop to the bum, from the saint to the outcast, is thinking in one way or another upon this subject.

And there is no one thing about which there is a greater diversity of strange, curious, and outlandish ideas.

To a great many people goodness implies simply observing a long list of prohibitions. It lies somewhere concealed in the word DON'T.

To others it is fidelity to tradition. And to many others it is a mere conformity to certain taboos and totems about which they deem it sacrilege to exercise their reason.

But perhaps the best definition of goodness is that given in the first paragraph of this article.

The dramatist has also his contribution to this discussion. One of the very best that I have seen recently is in the play by Ferenc Molnar called "Fashions For Men." He is the same man who wrote "Liliom."

This play is an excellent example of what the stage can do toward the interpretation of life. In my opinion, it is far and away the best contribution to life that the dramatists this season have made. It depicts a good man, who is not, however, in the least bit sorry for himself. He is good because he sees with the simplicity of a child how much more it is to his advantage and to that of everybody else to be thoughtful, and kind, and unselfish. He is even surprised that other people do not see it.

He is surrounded by all sorts of littleness and meanness. Every form of trickery, selfishness, and injustice attack him. He simply does not see them. The bright flame of his faith in everybody burns without a flicker.

The whole thing is so amazing, yet so self-evident, so utterly noble, and yet so absolutely unconscious of its nobility, that it grips your interest more than a melodrama and squeezes the tears out of your eyes more than the pinchbeck tragedy of the weak.

The part of the hero is played by O. P. Heggie with an art that is little short of perfection.

This is the right way in which to get over any preachment from the stage. There is no mediaevalism, no maudlin advertisement of piety, no suggestion of any peculiar theory or fad or cult or church or creed.

It is just sheer nobleness, the sheer majesty of humanity. We are moved at the spectacle of the really great soul as we are stirred by the sight of a vast mountain or a wide ocean.

You are made to feel something of the meaning of those lines of Goldsmith where he described a great character:

As some tall cliff that lifts its awful form,
Swells from the vale, and midway leaves the storm,—
Though round its breast the rolling clouds are spread,
Eternal sunshine settles on its head.

(Copyrighted by Dr. Frank Crane)

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

QUERIES

"Elevated"

Marjory Carlton: "Kindly inform me whether or not the expression, 'I am going home on the elevated', is correct. Or should the word 'elevated' be followed by another word; as, 'elevated line'; 'elevated express'? Also is it colloquially correct to say 'awfully good'—or is it permissible?" Answer: "Elevated" is a colloquial synonym for "elevated railroad". Do not say "awfully good": the right expression is "very good".

Conciseness

Frederick De Sola: "Could not your second reply to 'A Reader', in your column of November 25, have been more concise and still correct as follows: 'I am sure you will have the most appreciative of audiences'? Answer: The sentence referred to in The Right Word was "I am sure you will have a most appreciative audience". One sentence seems about as concise as the other.

"Typographical" Pronounced

Rose Edleman: Will you kindly give me the correct pronounciation of typographical? Answer: tai po - graf' i - kal (ai as in aisle; o as in obey; a as in at; i as in habit; a as o in winsome).

"Day" or "Days"?

C. Warren: "I have been asked to give the correct use of the word 'day' or 'days'. In the following sentence: 'This credit is available by a 30 day sight draft drawn on us'. One holds that 'day' should be plural and other that it should be in the possessive plural. What is correct?" Answer: It is customary to write, "a 30-day sight draft."

JOTTINGS

Tolerance is one of the virtues of intelligence.

Tolerance is the admission of the fact that we do not know everything.

That the other fellow may be right.

That the other fellow has rights.

That the other fellow may be wrong and there may be a reason for it.

* * *

Tolerance believes in charity.

Or rather in charitableness.

Tolerance is the antithesis of bigotry and fanaticism.

The enthusiast may serve the world well.

The fanatic would destroy a temple to bury a fly in the ruins.

* * *

Tolerance makes for the removal of friction.

It makes for laughter and wholesome humor.

It makes for kindness.

It does not ask "what do you believe," but "what do you need?"

Tolerance is the season of living with the salt of understanding.

* * *

Tolerance permits the survival of the race and of government.

For if there were intolerance, then governments might not continue to exist.

The majority would wipe out the minority.

And in the case of making, the perfect and strong would destroy the imperfect and weak.

* * *

Friendship requires tolerance.

Because friends sometimes do not understand things.

And without tolerance friendships would be broken and cease to exist.

But tolerance leavens misunderstanding.

It admits reasonable error and mistake.

Condones and forgives.

* * *

Human beings are approximations.

No man is the best man he can be.

Because the best possible state of being is perfection.

And perfection is possible but not attained.

And here tolerance steps in and explains and condones again.

* * *

Governments are well designed but they do not function perfectly.

Because the factors of governments are human.

And human factors are approximations.

They do not function perfectly.

Because of their humanity.

* * *

So tolerance understands.

And it does not fail because of the imperfections of governments.

It understands and seeks to improve.

But it is never cynical.

Only intolerance is cynical.

* * *

If Deity were intolerance humanity might be wiped out at a fiery breath.

Because Deity is perfection.

And perfection needs tolerance to abide imperfection and weakness and shame and all the expressions of human fallibility.

* * *

So the practice of tolerance makes for growth and breadth of spirit.

Intolerance makes for stagnation and disease and decay.

All of us need a tolerance in vision.

For we need understanding.

And to be understood.

Songs of the Poets

"He'd Nothing But His Violin"—By Mary Kyle Dallas (1830-1897)

He'd nothing but his violin,
I'd nothing but my song,
But we were wed when skies were blue
And summer days were long;
And when we rested by the hedge,
The robins came and told
How they had dared to woo and win,
When early Spring was cold.
We sometimes supped on dew-berries,
Or slept among the hay,
And oft' the farmers' wives at eve
Came out to hear us play;
The rare old songs, the dear old tunes—
We could not starve for long
While my man had his violin,
And I my sweet love-song.

The world has aye gone well with us
Old man since we were one—
Our homeless wanderings down the lanes
It long ago was done.
But those who wait for gold and gear
For houses or for kine,
Till youth's sweet spring grows brown and sere,
And love and beauty tine,
Will never know the joy of hearts
That met without a fear,
When you had but your violin
And I a song, my dear.

WHERE SANTA CLAUS LIVES

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Letters to "Dear Santa Claus" pour into my department every day. Pathetic, crumpled, tear stained letters many of them, begging the fat saint for a little Christmas cheer.

Usually I am asked to forward the missives to Santa as the tiny writers do not know where he lives. One or two tots have appealed to me to assure them that there IS a Santa Claus and to help them find him.

The letters are forwarded, one and all, and I can with truth assure the writers that Santa will get them.

But where does he live? Ah, that is a secret. When I was a child he lived in the far north with the reindeer and the aurora borealis. He came down every Christmas eve driving 24 reindeer to a great sleigh. The delicious thrill that warmed my childish heart as I lay awake listening for the sound of those sleigh bells is the sweetest memory of my life. I KNEW there was a Santa Claus and I fell asleep many a Christmas night and dreamed of the fat saint driving earthward on a span of the rainbow, the feet of his reindeer making music on the crispy snow. Even now, when most of the delusions of life are gone, I can shut my eyes and thrill at the mental picture of a fat and laughing, crimson clad saint shaking the snow from his pack as he makes ready to enter a house through the chimney and fill the stockings around the fireplace or rushing south through the cold, clear moonlit night to gladden the souls of the little children of earth.

But the day came when I knew that Santa Claus did not live at the north pole and that his reindeer did not travel down a moonlit path to make happy the babies at Christmas time. No children, he lives closer, much closer than the north pole. He lives in a warm, magic place where he hides from profane eyes except at Christmas time; and that place is close in the cockles of the human heart. This is the secret that keeps him alive.

In this magic world with Santa Claus live many of the things we most love but never see, love and faith and dreams and the good fairies that make men do noble deeds. Wherever love is there is Santa Claus and that is why loved children falling asleep on Christmas eve see him in dreams and wake to find substantial proof of the reality of those dreams.

And what of the poor children? Well, they, too, dream of the fat saint. Sometimes they have waked to find he had forgotten them. But each year he forgets fewer fewer and fewer, for each year his house has more rooms. As his business grows he expands his house to take in the warm places in hearts that once were cold; and where he comes love follows.

Oh yes, there is a Santa Claus. He is as real as all the best things in the world; but neither he nor any other precious treasure of the human soul can be seen with mortal eyes.

It is the eyes of the spirit that see Santa Claus and it is the children of the race in whom spiritual vision is keenest.

FAMILY DAMAGE SUITS

[orcester Telegram]

There contiue to appear in the newspapers suits for damages brought by one member of the family against another for injuries received in automobile accidents. When the man is driving and the car overturns, the next move is a suit by his wife for injuries. This has brought much moralizing about the lack of family feeling, or of filial regard. Now it is revealed that this moralizing is beside the point.

For in most of the suits the action, apparently directed against the defendant, is, in reality, directed against the insurance companies which have issued policies on the car. In New York a jury brought in verdict of damages for $28,000 for mother against daughter. The court at once stated its belief that the two were in collusion to mulct the insurance company, foud the verdict excessive and dreuced it to $10,000, which the plaintiff was given ten days to accept, and accepted in ten minutes.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Much has been said about the insidious growth of the narcotic habit in this country. That it is a terrible evil, that no social stratum is immune to its approach, seem to be well established facts.

HENRY JAMES

The hawker of forbidden drugs is the most dangerous of criminals. He is this, because he is accessory to all evil deeds. The acts of violence that have constituted a veritable wave of crime are due largely to drugs. Either the acts are committed by addicts that poisons have stimulated to reckless courage, or by these same addicts, when the desired result of the poison has died out of the system, and they are frenzied with the craving for more.

Often the addict takes an insane pleasure in teaching others the practice. The more astute of the peddlers, however, are wise enough to let the stuff alone.

What should be done with the victim of dope is a serious question. He or she is to be pitied as well as feared. Yet the ruin that awaits the person who indulges is so well known, that it is difficult to be patient with a folly that in the beginning had been deliberate.

Drug indulgence destroys body, mind and soul. The one really in the clutches of the vice is brought back only by a process that verges on the miraculous.

In the brave efforts of a moving picture actor, the slave of narcotics, to break his chains and come back to freedom, the public feels a genuine interest, and hopes that he may succeed; hopes also that the lesson of his experience may have a wide and helpful influence.

It seems that the president of Poland was not killed as the result of a political plot, but that his slayer was a poor half-wit who could not have defined his own purpose.

The murder of a president is a sad event. It is not sufficient, however, to cause condemnation of the republic. Americans ought to understand that.

* * *

A San Francisco automobilist has been sent to jail for six months, in the circumstances a very mild penalty. In his reckless driving he had killed two men.

Only a gentleness almost too pronounced could regard that as less than manslaughter.

Thomas Walsh, notorious in Chicago as being bigger than any law that operates there, has been acquitted of murder. This was his second experience of the kind. The only testimony supporting his guilt, that could be found, was that of some waiters in a restaurant where the dual killing had occurred. The waiters said they saw Walsh do the shooting.

Perhaps the jury went on the theory that the waiters were trying to get even for a small tip, or for no tip.

Despite any prejudice against waiters, if they see a man shot, it must be, as a physical law, that the man was shot. Waiters may be imaginitive concerning, for instance, the age of an egg, but it is not likely that they permit imagination to run away with them in more serious matters.

Another jealous wife shoots her husband. How ineffably silly! No husband is worth the fuss.

Moreover, not even a jealous wife would go this limit except that she has reason to believe that she can get away with it in court by a wan smile at the jury, and that meanwhile the sob-sisters will be making a heroine of her.

In a convention of highway engineers at Kansas City, one of the delegates bitterly assailed the railroads, saying as his conclusion: "The railroads stand for nothing, do nothing, give nothing, build nothing."

Railroads have been attacked before, frequently and with evident zest, yet the assault of the delegate must be regarded as unique. The public kicks at railroads, too, just as it does at street cars and busses, and the highly metered taxi, but it doesn't mean half that it says. Moreover, this criticism does not dovetail with the railroad activity to be observed in southern California now.

There is an argument in progress concerning the wickedness of Sunday fishing. Doubtless much may be said on both sides, and nothing said on either, will have the slightest effect upon the opposition. Happily, however, the man who deems fishing wrong one day of the week, is not under the slightest obligation to fish then.

The trick of sending home for money for a sick or dying brother doesn't work always. A chap tried it the other day, wiring, in the name of a doctor, for $50 to cover a professional fee. The member of the family who received the message, got on a train to come out to see that the funeral should be properly conducted.

There has been no funeral yet, but the supposed corpse is in jail, which breaks the monotony, anyhow.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

My lady wife came in bubbling and steaming this afternoon. She could hardly give me time in which to drive a valued customer out of the private office before she whistled three times for the right of way.

"I have never been so insulted in my life," she said. "I want you to get your hat and coat and come with me—this minute! And make that horrible old creature apologize."

I should have burst into the coat room, I know, and jammed the first hat at hand down upon my seething brow, but old acquaintance with the highly inflammable temper of my lady wife gave me pause. I asked first to know.

"Only tell me what happened, my love," said I.

So it developed that, being out upon an errand of mercy and harpooning, Mrs. Pilgrim had entered the office of Old Bill Jones to demand that he buy, at once, over the counter, a pocketfull of tickets for the entertainment which the Ladies Give 'em a Lift society is promoting. And Old Bill had refused.

"I don't know you," said he, "and I never heard of your society. Write me about it. Give me references. Put your begging on a business basis. Ask for an appointment. If I want to help you then, I will. But I never give a penny to strangers, male or female, who burst in through my front door and present a charitable gun at my head."

So Mrs. Pilgrim, in a number of well-chosen words, let him know just where to get off so far as one member of the city's elite is concerned, and then hurried in to get me to beat Old Bill to a fringe. But I would not do it. Because Old Bill and I and others on the same floor worked that plan out to protect ourselves against grafters. If Old Bill had been given time he would have told, "No use your wasting time on this floor," he would have said. "We are oathbound not to give a penny over the counter. Good causes get more money from us in the long run—and we protect ourselves from grafters."

None of us, perhaps, give as much as we should to charity. But it is certain that in this way we give wisely, and each of us has seen enough of unwise charity to esteem it a very dangerous thing. Sometimes we give as a group and sometimes individually, but we have collectively noted one odd fact.

We do not see a lot of the wise-smiling faces that used to push in past the head office boy. Not any more. Their owners know better.

RABBIT PIE AND HOW TO MAKE IT

Do you like rabbit pie? Then get out your pencil and some paper because here is a simple recipe from the office of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. Skin, draw, and cut a rabbit in pieces, put into a stew pan and cover with boiling water. Cook until very tender. Remove the meat from the broth and boil the broth down to about half its amount. Pick the meat from the bones in as large pieces as possible. Thicken the broth stock with one tablespoon of flour per cup of broth and pour over the meat. Add two tablespoons of salt and one-eighth teaspoon of pepper. Line the sides of a baking dish with crust, either a rich baking powder biscuit dough or pie crust, add the meat mixture, cover with crust, and bake in a hot oven for 30 minutes. The result is a knockout for the high cost of living.

HOW'S YOUR SPUDS?

If you are putting some potatoes away for future use, be sure that they are in good shape to be stored, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The potatoes should be dry and reasonably free from dirt when put away. Too much moisture or soil makes the potatoes heat and then soon rot. All diseased, badly cut, or bruised potatoes should be sorted out before the others are put away. If you have potatoes that have been stored for a while it is a good plan to sort them over and remove all that show signs of decay.

CREAM PUFF MIXTURE

Place one cup water with one-half cup shortening in pan over fire. Bring to boiling point, add one cup flour and one-fourth teaspoon salt, all at once, and stir until mixture forms a ball and leaves sides on pan. Remove from fire, and add four eggs unbeaten one at a time, beat thoroughly. This mixture may be dropped by spoonfuls in hot grease and served with fruit sauce, or dropped in muffin tins and filled with cream filling.

Christmas in the Kitchen

Three Attractive Menues for a Christmas Dinner and How to Prepare Them

It is a fortunate thing that Christmas, the brightest of all the festivals, comes at the darkest period of the year. Even when the days are at their shortest and the weather at its dreariest, we have Christmas to think of and prepare for.

Though Christmas is a festival shared in by all the Christian nations of the world, yet each nation has developed its own especial celebration. Christmas as we know it may almost be said to have developed since Dickens wrote the beautiful "Christmas Carols." Up to that time Christmas was more a church festival. Dickens taught us that it might, and should, be a time of "good will to men," of family gatherings and for taking thought of those who are lonely or in need.

Tradition Prescribes Goose for Christmas

Of course, one of the most important parts of the celebration is the Christmas dinner. Here is an orthodox menu for a quite sufficiently elaborate Christmas dinner. First raw oysters. Then a clear soup. If the housewife has an enameled ware soup kettle which she keeps duly going with all the odds and ends and left-overs, she has a foundation for her clear soup. To a quart of this soup stock, strained out, add one pound of soup meat cut in small pieces. Cook for two or three hours. Set off and when cold skim. Reheat and settle with the white of an egg, as one would coffee. Set aside and heat when needed.

For the roast have the Christmas goose of English tradition. The goose is a noble bird, imposing in appearance and most excellent in flavor. Many housewives, however, fear to try goose as it is not easily roasted. It needs much basting for one thing and a rather slow oven. If, however, the hostess owns an enameled ware roaster she need have no misgivings. These roasters are self-basting and the arrangements for ventilating allow the goose to cook as slowly or as fast as is needed.

The goose must have apple sauce as its accompaniment. Apple sauce when properly made can be appetizing. The apples should not be pared and sliced until just when they are to be cooked. Put in an enameled ware saucepan with just enough water to keep from burning and cook quickly; add sugar just before removing from the fire, also a dash of lemon juice if the apples are not sour. Cooked in this way the apple sauce will be a golden amber as the enameled ware will not darken the fruit. Onions and boiled rice also go well with the rich roast goose. A fruit salad is a refreshing next course. Canned pineapple covered with a layer of sliced bananas, with a spoonful of whipped cream on top is a very good salad and easily prepared.

For dessert, of course, comes the plum pudding. No longer can the pudding enter in a glory of blazing brandy to the awe and amazement of youthful guests, but it can still wear its sprig of holly and be as delicious as ever. Here is an old English rule for the genuine article. Take half a pound of stale bread crumbs, one cup of hot milk. Soak the crumbs in the milk and let it stand until cold. Then add one-quarter of a pound of sugar, the beaten yolks of four eggs, half a pound of raisins, one-quarter of a pound of currants, the same of figs chopped fine and a little fine cut citron. Then take half a pound of suet, cut up and stir to a cream. Add this to the other mixture. Then add spices, cinnamon and cloves, a tablespoonful of each. A half teacupful of cider follows and last of all the whites of four eggs beaten stiff. A small sized enameled ware dishpan will be found most useful for mixing this pudding. It should be carefully tied in a cloth and boiled for six hours in a preserving kettle. This pudding is very good when cold and cut into slices and fried, so there is no haste about eating it all on Christmas day. Black coffee and fruit will finish a very substantial dinner.

As a Surprise Serve Roast Sucking Pig

Another orthodox menu has for its central point a roast sucking pig. As this is a very rich dish begin with raw clams, always a good appetizer, then a clear soup as before; small portions in cups will be ample. Then the pig. Don't try to cook it unless you have an enameled ware roaster, as it is no easy task to cook a sucking pig. With the roaster, however, there is no trouble at all. The perfectly basted pig will emerge the beautiful golden brown it should be, and may be borne proudly to the table with a lemon in its mouth!

The fat of the pig demands an acid and nothing is nicer than our pretty, wholesome, red cranberries. Cooked in an enameled ware saucepan which will not darken their color, they may be served with the pig either as sauce or jelly. They tell us in the south that sucking pig and sweet potatoes go together, and they ought to know. Onions are also a good addition. After such a hearty meat course a string bean salad comes in well. Housewives in the country will find the canned string beans very good. Serve with a fruit dressing.

The most orthodox dessert after plum pudding for Christmas is mince pie, but the old-fashioned mince pies are so formidable. Bought mince meat canned is good and baked with a nice home-made crust is as nice a pie as one need have. There is, however, a rule for so-called mock mince pie which makes a pie not so rich and therefore better after such a repast. Take four good sized soda crackers, roll them out, add one and one-half cups of sugar, one cup molasses, the juice of half a lemon, one cup of raisins chopped, one-half cup of dates chopped, one-half cup of butter, two eggs well beaten and spice to taste. Bake in enameled ware pie plates in a fairly quick oven.

Now we have had two quite full and elaborate Christmas dinners, but there are families who are not large enough to make such menus very practical nor are their purses long enough to make that kind of dinner very reasonable, so let us see what we can fine that is also entirely correct for Christmas and yet within the reach of modest means.

A Christmas Dinner for Small Family

First get a quart of small oysters. Take a pint of them and make an oyster stew. With the help of an enameled ware double boiler there will be no trouble with this, for there will be no danger of the milk curdling.

Buy an old fowl or hen. These are cheaper than the roasting fowls and quite as good in flavor. Cut it up as for a fricassee. Put on the fire in an enameled ware saucepan and cook slowly until tender. Have ready a rather shallow enameled ware baking dish. Put in the chicken and add the other pint of oysters. Cover with a plain pastry crust and bake. With this chicken-pie serve cranberry sauce prepared as with the sucking pig. A very nice vegetable to go with the chicken pie is cauliflower. If that is not available canned corn is also good.

For dessert try a Norwegian prune pudding. Pick over and wash one-half pound of prunes. Soak them in cold water for an hour. Then cook in a saucepan until soft. Separate the prunes from the stones. Crack the stones and take out the meat; add these meats to the prunes. Then add one cup of sigar, one tablespoonful of cinnamon, two cups of boiling water and cook all together for ten minutes. Then take one-third of a cup of cornstarch, add cold water to this until it is a thin batter, add to the prune mixture and cook five minutes. Pour all into mould and put away in a cold place for several hours. This is good made the day before. Serve with cream.

Now here is a simple but excellent meal, and, ended off with black coffee, no one need ask for a better to give them a truly

Merry Christmas.

A certain actor boasted that he could adopt any dialect in the world.

"Well, look here," said his manager, "I've got the very part for you—but I wonder whether you can really manage it."

"Don't worry—fire away!" said the actor. "Ive never been stumped yet."

"Good!" exclaimed the manager. "Then I needn't worry. The part I want you to play is that of a Frenchman——"

"That's easy!"

"Yes, but he wasn't born in France, you see. He was born in Japan, of Irish parents." A year after he was born he went to Norway, where he was brought up by a Spaniard."

"I see," murmured the actor. "I've got to speak a sort of broken Spanish, eh?"

"No, not exactly. The scene of the play is Italy, and the man is trying to make a German family believe that he is Russian. Can you manage it?"

A public gathering in a country town was interrupted by the entrance of one who made his way to the platform and whispered excitedly to the chairman:

"Is Mr. Smith in the audience?" broke forth the presiding gentleman. "I am informed that his house is on fire."

Forty gentlemen sprang to their feet.

"It is the house of Mr. John Smith," added the chairman.

"Thank goodness!" exclaimed one man, resuming his seat.

FRUIT TURNOVERS

Make a nice puff paste; roll it out the usual thickness, as for pies, then cut it out into circular pieces about the size of a small tea saucer, pile the fruit on half of the paste, sprinkle over some sugar, wet the edges and turn the paste over. Press the edges together, ornament them and brush the turnovers over with the white of an egg; sprinkle over sifted sugar and bake on tins in a brisk oven for about 20 minutes. Instead of putting the fruit in raw, it may be boiled down with a little sugar first, and then enclosed in the crust; or jam of any kind may be substituted for the fresh fruit.

SCHOOLS FALL BEHIND IN EDUCATION

So Declares United States Commissioner on Education

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The country is so far behind in providing educational facilities for its children that "it is letting the school that was good enough for our fathers to suffice for the children today," according to John J. Tigert, U. S. commissioner of education.

Among the defects cited by the commissioner in an appeal for better school buildings are: Old, dilapidated structures, half of them dating back more than 25 years; lack of fireproof construction; serious congestion; lack of necessary adjuncts for a rounded education, such as gymnasiums, shops, science and cooking rooms.

"One school building of every four now in use was built more than thirty years ago," Tigert declared.

"Hundreds of thousands of children are housed in portable, rented buildings, stores and lofts. Thousands more are sitting for four or five hours a day in badly lighted, inadequately ventilated basements, three feet or more below street level.

"Only five per cent of all the school buildings are of fire-proof construction. Every week in the year a school building is burned or partly destroyed.

"Seventy-five per cent of the cities in 1920 reported congestion. Hundreds of thousands are on half-time.

"These are unpleasant facts. But they are facts that need to be stated because the crisis is serious."

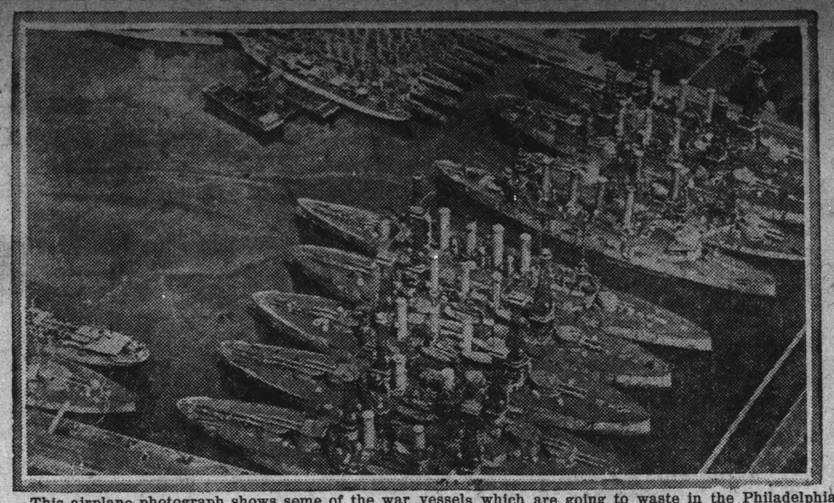
HALF A BILLION DOLLARS IN U. S. WARSHIPS RUSTING IN NAVY YARD



This airplane photograph shows some of the war vessels which are going to waste in the Philadelphia navy yard. These fighting ships, which represent an expenditure of half a billion dollars, are now out of commission because of lack of funds and insufficient crews to man them.

AIR-MAIL SERVICE

The transcontinental air-mail service between New York and San Francisco, operating every day in the year except Sundays and holidays, was established on Sept. 8, 1920.

Transcontinental mail from New York, transported by airplane, is carried by train to Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y., and thence by airplane at 7:45 a. m. to Cleveland, overtaking train 35, and thence by rail to Omaha, Neb., where it is again taken by airplane to Cheyenne, Wyo., connecting there with train 13, Union Pacific Railway, due at San Francisco, Cal., at 8:30 a. m. on the third day after leaving New York.

Mail from New York in the early morning is due to arrive in Cleveland at 12 noon on the same day.

Letters for Chicago, sent from New York on train 21, leaving at 6:46 p. m., are transferred to airplane at Cleveland and are due in Chicago about 12:15 p. m., the day after leaving New York.

The capacity of a 'plane is from 400 to 500 pounds, and the 'planes make a speed of about seventy to ninety miles an hour.

Mail carried by airplane, the mail consisting of matter of the first class, including sealed parcels not exceeding thirty inches in length and girth combined, is chargeable with postage at the rate of 2 cents for each ounce or fractions thereof. Special airplane stamps are not required; any stamps good for postage may be used.

Studies are now being made as to the proposition for establishing night service between New York and Chicago, with its attendant problems of laying out emergency fields, with beacon lights of aerial lighthouses and landing lights on the 'planes and at the fields.

Mr. Hogan was a cautious man, which perhaps explains why he was also successful. McGinty approached him dolefully.

"'Sure, Mr. Hogan," he said, "my house was burnt to the ground yesterday, with everything in it, and it's left me, it has, with sorra a rag to stand up in. Can't you help me in some way?"

Mr. Hogan looked him over.

"But haven't you anything to prove your statement with—a certificate, or some papers?" he inquired.

"Ah, I had one," answered McGinty, "but it was burned up entirely with me house!"

GLENDALE DAILY PRESS READERS VOTE AGAINST ANNEXATION BY PHONE

Some Admit They Were Interested in Propaganda, But Soon Saw Through the Proposition and Are Now Strongly in Favor of Home Rule

W. E. Evans furnishes the surprise note of the discussion of annexation today in the Glendale Daily Press.

The view of Mr. Evans will be found in the comment following, the leading note being that Mr. Evans, who has been city attorney in Glendale, is "not unfavorable" to annexation. He bases his views on the need of sewers and believes through annexation they can be secured.

The comments of Los Angeles councilmen who had asserted Glendale could not even expect sewer relief for seven yars, Mr. Evans meets with the suggestion they are not always posted and are not authorities.

As the comment develops over the telephone and otherwise it is evident that the readers of the Glendale Daily Press want action by the city, for the city, on sewers. But they do not want such action by Los Angeles, for Glendale.

W. E. Evans of North Orange street says he is not unfavorably disposed to annexation to Los Angeles because of the sewer problem; that while he was employed by Glendale as city attorney the matter was much discussed and several surveys and reports were made by experts employed by the city, all of which came to nothing. "Los Angeles must provide a sewer system for East Los Angeles," he said, "and it would naturally connect with Glendale." Commenting on the statements by Councilman Criswell of Los Angeles and others of Los Angeles that no such connection could be assured under 5 to 7 years, he said too much weight should not be attached to their utterances, for the reason that they are not always well enough acquainted with the problem to speak with authority.

D. Hunsberger, 412 West California avenue: "I am opposed to annexation of Glendale to Los Angeles, as the people of this city can get better service if Glendale remains independent. It took me two weeks to get inspection on a plumbing job in Los Angeles, whereas here in Glendale the inspection is made the same day the order is put in. Glendale has a fine plumbing ordinance. If this city annexed to Los Angeles it would lower the standard for this kind of work and it would also be overrun with Russian-Jewish plumbers from Los Angeles, who would give a cheap class of work."

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Frampton, 215 Arden avenue: "We are against annexation and believe it better for Glendale to remain an independent city. Los Angeles, of course, wants us for nothing more than our taxes."

D. E. Reed, 331 West Myrtle street: "I believe that it will be necessray for Glendale to annex to Los Angeles sooner or later on account of the sewerage problem."

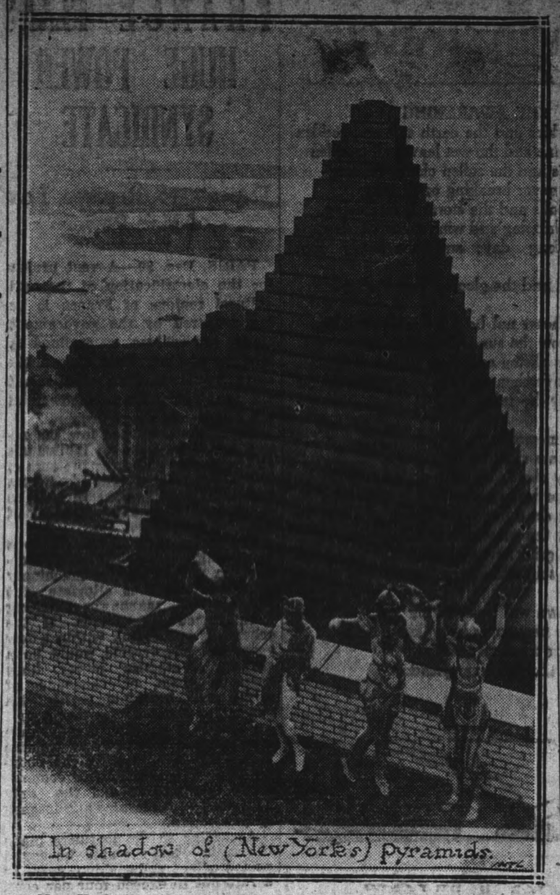
Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dotson, 333 West Harvard street: "No, indeed; we do not want to annex to Los Angeles. We think that it would be a very foolish move."

Mrs. O. H. Belew, 1661 Highland avenue: "Anexation to Los Angeles would ruin Glendale. I like Glendale and not Los Angeles, and if this city were to consolidate with Los Angeles I do not think that I would care to stay. I have talked against annexation for the last seven years and am going to keep it up."

Mrs. W. H. Verity, 511 West Broadway: "I do not approve of annexing Glendale to Los Angeles, as I cannot see where we would be benefitted. We might not be getting quite everything we want with this city council, but I do not believe that we would with any city council. If Glendale annexed to Los Angeles we would be such a little toad in a big puddle that they would not care whether we got what we wanted or not. I believe that things can be run much easier as they are."

J. H. Franklin, 246 North Central avenue: "Glendale would lose its identity by annexing to Los Angeles, and also its power. We could not do what we desired to do in the way of public improvements and could not depend upon any promises that Los Angeles would make, as there could be no contracting parties."

IN SHADOW OF (NEW YORK'S) PYRAMIDS



New Yorkers were treated to a little bit of Egypt, without a trip to the land of the Nile, when five enterprising dancers put on this dance on the roof of the Equitable building, in lower Broadway, with the pyramidal top of the Bankers' Trust company building for their background.

Listening in on Eve

GOWNING BY FORCE

Pitying the misery of the ladies who, being more than perfect 36's, have endeavored to buy gowns in the usual dress sections, there has arisen in most of the stores a haven pertaining to "stylish-stouts." In them, when one asks for size 40, the saleslady does not raise perfect eyebrows in commiseration. She acts as though there really did exist size 40 ladies in the world and goes right away and brings back armfuls of frocks to try on.

Voice from Booth 1—"Of course when I've been on the diet I've just started I know I can wear a 38! It does seem so odd, having to come to the large section because just a few years ago I could wear 36's—this is awfully tight through the shoulders——"

Clerk—"Yes, you can't possibly wear that—I think we have it in the next size——"

Voice (irritably)—"What size is this?"

Clerk—"Why, this is a 42——"

Voice—"Why, the very idea! I never wore a 42 in my life! It must be marked wrong——"

Voice from Booth 2—"I was just ready to cry when I came in here! I went to the regular dress sections, where I've bought my gowns all my life, and the clerk I drew was just unspeakable! None of the gowns fitted in the least and she tried to make out it was my fault to cover up the shortness of the stock! If the neck was awful she said mercy, but didn't I have a high chest, and if the skirt wouldn't go on she would sigh and say well, of course, I must realize that my hips were extra large in proportion——"

Friend—"Why don't you try rolling, dear? Estelle Creamer lost five inches around her hips by rolling twenty min——"

Voice (frostily)—"I don't think it is necessary! My hips are not a particle too large for my height! Something is wrong with this dress—it pulls and—"

Clerk—"Yes, doesn't it? Well, we'll try a larger size—"

Voice (exasperated—"I certainly wish they would mark things right! I never wore a larger size than 44 in my life and I weigh hardly a bit more than—"

Friend—"Oh, you've grown quite a bit heavier this last summer, dear! I don't think stout women realize how they take on weight—"

Voice(acidly)—"Well, when one is as skinny as you are, Doris, the wrinkles show so and there's no camouflaging one's age! I don't think this clerk is any good either—she's tried on at least sixteen dresses and I don't like any of them—"

Friend—"It is so hard to look really stylish when one is large, I know! Why don't you try that new reduction system that Isabel Dobbins went in for? She was perfectly dreadful—she must have weighed as much as you do, and now she's human looking again! You just eat bran and celery and walk ten miles a day—perfectly simple!"

Voice from Booth 3—"And that's all the diet permits me to eat. Of course I am not one of those disagreeable persons who make everybody uncomfortable when invited out. If I'm at a party I just eat what is served. But I am strictly on the diet otherwise. We were out to dinner three times last week and then there were several afternoon affairs and one luncheon, but I'm going to cut down this week to make up for it. I shall not eat a thing but diet articles. What on earth ails this dress? The skirt seems to catch."

Clerk (resignedly)—"You take a larger size than what you asked for—I'll go see whether we have this model in anything larger."

Friend (triumphantly)—Why, I just knew when you told her 46 that you certainly must wear something bigger than that."

Voice from Booth 4—"Why, these dresses make me look perfectly enormous. I think these mirrors must be queer or something. I don't think you understand the style I require at all and there just isn't any use trying on any more."

Clerk (patiently)—"I'm sorry. I've brought you exactly nineteen of our best models and it does seem as though among them we could find something—"

Voice (haughtily)—"Well, I'm certainly not going to buy anything that makes me so outrageously big as these do! The idea! When I've been reducing and lost three pounds last month!"

A gong strikes. It is the closing hour. A large and explosive sigh of relief nearly lifts the roof off the section.

It is from the heroic clerks.

Georgie was enjoying his book thoroughly when suddenly he paused thoughtfully.

"Dad," he said tentatively.

"Well, my boy?"

"What is a feebly, dad?"

"A feebly?" repeated his father in astounded tones. "What do you mean, George? Feebly is an adverb, not a noun."

George was unconcerned. "It's something that grows," he said, "It says so here."

"Let me see."

Whereupon George laboriously read out the sentence: "'The man had a feebly growing down on his chin.'"

APACE WITH PROGRESS

WITH the march of progress the plumbing industry has kept pace.

It has gone forward in standards, in ideals, in the personnel of its membership, in the skill and character of its workmanship and in its manufactured product.

It is proud of the strides it has made.

Today the plumber's greatest asset is reputation. Greater than his stock in trade; greater than his capital.

Therefore, to foster these ideals; to elevate these standards to an even higher plane, 200 plumbing concerns in Southern California have organized the Sanitary Development League.

Members are pledged to maintain the highest standards and ideals of this great industry. In turn the organization stands solidly behind the product and workmanship of members.

This, their first message to the public, is not complete.

It will be continued in the columns of this newspaper and others from time to time. It is a worth-while message. Read it.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. —Advertisement.

CAPTIVES TRY TO CONVERT CHINESE BANDITS

Eight Missionary Captives Keep Working at Mission

PEKING (By Mail).—The eight or ten missionaries who have been captured by Chinese bandits are taking their captivity partly as a joke and partly as a great religious adventure.

The bandits are pleasant, give the hostages the best quarters and best food as they move along and permit their families to send them letters, food, books and clothes. That part of it is a joke.

The great adventure consists in their attempting to convert the bandits and they have been successful in some instances, according to reports.

While capturing missionaries is comparatively common in China, the bandits don't usually take seven in one month. Accordingly, the situation is no joke for the ministers of foreign powers.

The powers tell China forcibly to go get the prisoners. The Chinese government delivers the ultimatum to the bandits who reply that if attacked they will kill the prisoners. Families of the prisoners weep and ask the ministers to go easy. The foreigners who are not in captivity tell the ministers to "treat 'em rough," and protect their nationals.

In the meantime the bandits and their captives journey from one place to another, taking what they want or can get. However, a bandit is a bandit and he may get mad so there is just a little cloud over the prisoners' sun.

The Honan bandits who have been seizing missionaries say quite frankly that they are disbanded soldiers and are taking foreign prisoners to involve Peking with the foreign governments and thus force Peking to take them back into the national army.

The government says that what comes of disbanding soldiers.

A profiteer invited a well-known literary man to dine with him at a club which was more conspicuous for the number than the quality of its members. "Order what you like, my boy," intoned the host pompously. "You'll get a dinner here such as you'd never get at home." "Ah," said the novelist blandly, "in that case I think I'll have sausages and mashed."

Art is long and time is fleeting—and some artists' time is as valueless as their art.

THE AWAKENING

Gray are the skies and the earth soft and sodden;
Dripping the lane and the wet leaves all trodden
Under the trees and the sullen clouds drifting
Over the sky, never breaking or lifting;
Still the rain falls and the storm is increasing,
All the eaves dripping and wind never ceasing,
Through the long day; and the heavy limb bending,
Over the road, and the gloom never ending.

Yet shall my heart not be filled with repining,
For on tomorrow the sun will be shining,
And the leaves glisten and gray skies will lighten,
All the flowers freshen and all the world brighten
After the rain.

Sad be the heart and the memories calling
Out of the past and the tears shall be falling
Over the day and the gray clouds be drifted,
Thick with their sorrow, nor broken or rifted,
And the wind cries and the dead hopes are flying
Down like the leaves, and the gray day is dying
Here in the dusk, and the grief never ceasing,
Dripping the tears and the sobs still increasing,

But on the morrow the dawn will be breaking
Clear and with sun and the new hopes be waking,
All the hopes bright and the memories tender,
All the world glad and with brightening splendor
After the tears.

The Once Over

MRS. S. O. ESS REPLIES TO A REQUEST FOR A CONTRIBUTION FROM MR. F. O. BEE

Dear Mr. Bee:

I have your letter requesting me to contribute something to the Fund to Build Larger Writing Rooms for Self-Made Elevator Men and Establish Permanent Fire Lines Around All Girls' Universities. I take my pen in hand to tell you that such a suggestion has ruined my day and started me off on the worst ink spree I have had in months.

I am against men in any form whatever. Particularly am I against self-made men, although a self-made man conscious of his self-making is less objectionable than a self-made man who isn't. The trouble with most self-made men is that they think they head the League of Cathedral Builders and Perfect Product Manufacturers.

If I had my way I would burn all self-made business men. Also all their letters. And I would not stop to sift the ashes.

The men of our country do not need more writing rooms. What they need is to stop talking through their foupees, stop smoking their rubbers, give up their self-satisfied manners, stop their barbers from powdering the backs of their necks and ears, cease chewing peppermint for their breaths, and stop using wing collars as fenders when eating raspberry pie or soft-boiled eggs.

Of all the fool things in the world I think the idea of self-made men is the worst. When a young man, scorning further schooling, enters an office to learn a business, he has only the satisfaction of knowing that it will be a good trick if he does it.

When they graduate (at the end of thirty years) to the position of fifth deputy bookkeeper they know nothing about solid geometry, calculus, logarithms, the Einstein theory of dimensions, Greek and Roman literature, astronomy, or the Book of Etiquette.

They can't even conjugate a Latin verb decently and the chances they will ever grab off a Phi Beta Kappa key are practically null and void. They have their brains twisted by studying Kelly pool, the Babe Ruth baseball articles, Dempsey's reply to Tex Rickard, and the proper proportion of water to mix with alcohol to get synthetic gin—a lot of stuff that could have been concocted (I refer especially to the gin) only in the brains of men who write "How I Became a Whiz at the Age of Thirty-two" and similar twaddle.

Men used to be highly respected and honored by the women. But that day has passed away, and this is due to the effect bunk is having on young men of today than to anything else or vice versa and likewise pro and con and etcetera.

I remember when men were looked up to by women. We even used to think them grand!!! But that was before they started writing foolish letters.

Not so many years ago we were polite and considerate toward them and would even listen attentively to their views on politics, world events and business. Today we are abrupt and contemptuous in their presence, we laugh in their faces when they talk politics, and when it comes to business we are better men than they are, Gunga Din. Women today even serve on juries that vote to hang men!

Men? Poof! A couple of poofs! They should be labelled: "For use for laughing purposes only."

Nothing could be better for the self-made men that are now in our allied trades than to yank them out and put them to hard study in a university for at least fifty or sixty years so that there might be put into their heads some little trace of sense.

Hoping your main cables are regularly inspected, I am very truly yours,

MRS. S. O. ESS.

P.S.—I forgot to say that I do not intend to contribute a dime toward your cause.

FRANCE PLANS HUGE POWER SYNDICATE

Expects to Replace Loss of Man Power

PARIS, Dec. 20.—A vast project for the electrification of the agricultural regions of France is being prepared by the government. Under the scheme, as outlined by Minister of Agriculture Cheron, the state would arrange credits and aid in placing electric power at the disposal of every farmer.

Under the projected law the nation would advance to individuals and regional syndicates the sum of 600,000,000 francs. The syndicates and individuals would furnish an equal amount—making a total of 1,200,000,000 francs.

The basic object of the scheme is to intensify domestic farm production, to modernize the machinery on farms and thus alleviate the shortage of manpower resulting from France's war losses. If the scheme is successful, within a few years the countryside would be a network of electric power lines reaching tens of thousands of farms and furnishing them with power for labor-saving machinery.

Cheron's idea is that France must garner from her own soil the means of rehabilitating the country and rendering France economically independent and the only method is to modernize and intensify production.

According to the tentative plans the state loans would be for a period of not under thirty years at a rate not to exceed four per cent.

Agricultural authorities predict that such electrification would immensely increase France's production of food stuffs and enable her to become a big exporter, because at present, despite the fertility of the soil, and toilsome labor by the peasants, production is unsatisfactory, owing to the use of old-fashioned farm machinery. In many places oxen are still used in plowing with the same style of plows that were used a hundred years ago.

KEEP POULTRY CLEAN

The best life insurance for poultry is cleanliness, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The poultry house drinking fountains and feed troughs must be washed every week with boiling water or other disinfectant to be safe. If any lice or mites are found on the chickens or in the house the roosts and walls should be painted with disinfectant or whitewashed. Good disinfectants should be used often in and about the poultry house.
